Our presenters will speak about Princeton's role in J. Robert Oppenheimer's life and the development of the atomic bomb.

Inspired by Christopher Nolan's award-winning film, this talk showcases the places where Oppenheimer lived and worked in Princeton (some seen in the film), shares stories about the local academics recruited to work on the Manhattan Project, and provides additional context not explored in the movie.

Our program will be presented by Eve Mandel from the Historical Society of Princeton, where she is Director of Programs and Outreach. Eve will be joined by Heather Jahrling, who is a Visitor Services Associate at the Historical Society and a third year PhD student at Princeton University.
